The following information

25X1

[redacted] relates in detail the organization, personalities, and activities of the Directorate of Internal Affairs (Upravlenie Vnutrennikh Del, or UVD) of the Soviet Military Administration for Germany. The exact status of the UVD within the SIA in Germany, as well as the possibility of the Directorate's serving as cover for Soviet intelligence operations against western powers, has been a contentious issue for some time.

25X1

[redacted] the UVD appears at present to combine within itself the duties of our Public Safety, CID, and, to a certain extent, CIC. [redacted]

25X1

[redacted] no part of the UVD serves as cover for HSB; but the UVD conducts counter-intelligence operations to the extent of surveilling German Police and Governmental institutions for the purpose of identifying individuals who may be giving information to the western Allies. These cases, when discovered by UVD informants, are [redacted] turned over to the HSB Operational Sector for intelligence exploitation.

1. Until March 1947, the UVD was known as the Internal Affairs Section (Otdel Vnutrennikh Del, or OVD) of the Soviet Military Administration for Germany. The Section was divided into various committees whose names indicated their assigned functions, e.g. Civil Administration Committee, Public Safety Committee, Committee on Education, Health, Religious Affairs, Intelligence, etc. The Office of the Legal Advisor (Prosecutor), subsequently made an independent branch of the SIA, as well as the Central Directorate of the Police, were also known to have come under the UVD.

2. In pursuance of a directive from Moscow dated March 1947, the OVD was given the status of a Directorate (Upravlenie). In the subsequent reorganization, all sections and subsections were redesignated numerically, probably for security reasons. The organization consists of about eighty officers, of which fifty are Communist Party members, with offices located in two houses in Berlin-Karlshorst. Chief of the Directorate Major General Pavel Mikhailovich MALMOV reports directly to Col. Gen. I. A. SEROV, Deputy Minister, MVD, USSR, and apparently no OVD communications are channeled through the SMA. On certain local political questions, MALMOV often seeks advice from the Political Counselor (Politsovetnik) of the SMA.

3. The OVD is now composed of two sections, the First Section with five numerical Subsections, and the Second Section with one numerical Subsection and other miscellaneous subsections, e.g. the Directorate Group (Gruppa Direktora), the Secretariat (Sekretariat Upravleniya), the Operational Bureau (Buro Operativnogo Ucheta), the Personnel Section (UK), Commandant of the Directorate, Financial Section, and the Archives Section (Arkhivnoye Otdeleniye).

4. Each province in the Russian Zone of Occupation has a OVD Section called the OVD. The OVD is divided in approximately the same manner as the OVD and is directly responsible to the OVD. Besides the provincial OVDs, an OVD was established in August 1947 covering the Russian Sector of Berlin. The following are the chiefs of the Internal Affairs Sections of the OVD:

KUTYSHEV, Lt. Col. OVD, Berlin

NOTE: Member of Soviet element of ACA.

r. Party Organizer (PARTORG)

Major Mikhail PROLOV

PROLOV arranges Communist Party meetings within the Directorate.

NOTE: Sections and Directorates of the SNA have no liaison with local Communist Party organizations. Such liaison is carried on directly by the Political Section (Polit Otdel) of the SNA on instructions from the Moscow Central Committee of the Communist Party (TsK VKP (b)). The PARTORG (Party Committee) is a standard part of every Soviet organization. It has no liaison nor anything to do with the local Communist Party, but is rather a purely local Soviet inter-office organization, of which the PARTORG is a branch.
